

LIVESTOCK EDITOR

required for agriculture's national newspaper
Farmers Guardian

Is your ideal job being out on farm finding out about what leading-edge farmers are doing to boost their livestock unit's productivity and profitability? Do you want to be at the forefront, writing for and editing a section reporting on the latest advances in livestock technology?

If finding great farmers to interview, getting the latest livestock technical news first and providing compelling content is your sort of job, then we've got just the position for you. Farmers Guardian, the UK's award-winning national agricultural newspaper, is looking for a Livestock Editor.

This is one of the best jobs in the UK livestock industry, and we are looking for someone with talent and determination to build on our highly-regarded coverage. You will have at least two years of journalism experience in print and online, a solid background in the agricultural (and preferably livestock) industry, and a proven ability to explain highly technical information in an interesting and readable way.

You will be a key member of the editorial team, and responsible for delivering news and features in paper and online, editing the livestock section and numerous special features, as well as having the opportunity to do plenty of multi-media work including online debates, digital editions and videos.

We are looking for a hard-working, enthusiastic, motivated person who is keen to work as part of a close-knit team and with our freelance contributors.

The role is ideally based at Farmers Guardian's head office in Preston, but, depending on the successful candidate, this may be flexible. Preston is within 45 minutes of both Manchester and the Lake District, and on the edge of the Forest of Bowland Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty.

Farmers Guardian is part of UBM, a global media and events business with turnover approaching £890m. An excellent package, including 25 days holiday (rising to 27 after two years), contributory pension scheme, share option scheme and free life assurance, is available for the right candidate.

To apply, please send your CV, covering letter and examples of your work to Emma Penny, Editor, Farmers Guardian, PO Box 18, Preston, Lancashire PR2 9GU, or email emma.penny@ubm.com. The closing date is July 25. For an informal discussion about the role, please contact Emma on 01772 799 401.

UBM

UBM is an equal opportunities employer.